

ABSTRACT

A dynamic sequential device is provided that is adapted for scan control and observation. The dynamic sequential device may be scanned in-circuit as part of a scan chain in a VLSI device or it may be scanned as a discrete device. The dynamic sequential device maintains performance with respect to speed while allowing control and observation of its internal machine states.